

Current Feedings, up to 12 months and Older

I have them in 100% RAW 3x a day. I leave dry kibble out if they get hungry in between.

Royal Canin: High-performance nutrition at the service of professionals; for over 40 years, thanks to research concentrated exclusively on dogs and cats, the nutritional precision with which Royal Canin responds to the needs of each individual dog and cat has been expressed via visible and lasting benefits for their well-being.

Mother & Babycat is for queens during gestation and lactation - 1st age kittens from 1 to 4 months

The wet food I have them on now is BABYCAT INSTINCTIVE™ Loaf in Sauce is for kittens from 1 to 4 months of age.

*** No need to buy a lot of this canned food. I will let you know if you are going to need it with your kitten. Most kittens are eating RAW and dry kibble when they leave here.***

4+ months

By the time a kitten gets to be around 4 months old, their growth rate slows, but their activity levels skyrocket. With intensifying energy levels, developing bones, growing muscles, and emerging teeth, older kittens need a different kind of nutrition than a younger baby cat.

Royal Canin Kitten Dry Food gives a kitten a healthy start with nutritional precision: An innovative mix of highly digestible proteins, vitamins, and other essential minerals support their maturing digestive system and keeps their growing bodies strong. And an exclusive blend of antioxidants supports their developing immune system. Transitioning from Royal Canin Mother & Babycat wet and dry formulas is easy: the small, easy-to-chew kibble made specifically for kittens' mouths.

If you are going to use a different dry kibble, please make sure it is grain free.

Kittybloom VM900+3 is a vitamin that is added to their food to make sure they get enough nutrients. There is a link on my website as well. This is a supplemental vitamin that we give all our cats/kittens because of the wild blood.

<http://www.dogbloom.com/feline/products.html>

Kittybloom Super Lysine just like humans lysine is a good immunity booster.

RAW

You do not have to feed him RAW if you do not want to. I find when they eat the RAW they are healthier, leaner, their coats stay nice and shiny and slick and less digestion issues.

He will love to eat any type of meat they are carnivores. Mine like fish (cooked), bacon just take it easy on the bacon LOL.

Some people give their cats ground hamburger. I find it cheaper and healthier to grind up chicken. I have on my website the grinder I use at this time. I have what I put in the RAW for them on the website as well:

RAW - What goes in it?

Chicken Breast, Chicken Thighs with the skin - use the bones if your grinder will allow it. Chicken Livers, Pumpkin Puree

- Make sure to freeze for 72 hours to kill the *toxoplasma gondi (the parasite which causes toxoplasmosis)

My recipe is on my website as well.

There are a few websites out there with more information about the nutritional aspects of feeding RAW.

<http://fnae.org/raw.html>

If you are not going to get a grinder, a food processor would work as well with chicken breast.

Pre-made raw (instinct raw – can get at Petco & PetSmart)

<http://www.naturesvariety.com>

<https://blueridgebeef.com/>

Kitten Grind

<https://blueridgebeef.com/products/kitten-grind>

Kitten Mix

<https://blueridgebeef.com/products/kitten-mix>

Play Structures are VERY IMPORTANT – Contract states no declawing

If you do not have one yet I would suggest a climbing tower. They guys love to play ... play and play. They love to climb and be at the highest point they can. He is already able to climb cat towers and use scratching posts. This will also save your furniture. I have not an issue with the cats clawing at the furniture as long as I have a cat tower or scratching post in the room. I do have a link on my website under products/links for where I buy our climbing towers and they are about half the price as the big bulky carpeted ones if you are interested.

<http://www.gopetclub.com/>

Litter & Litter Box's

When the kittens are 4 weeks old they start with woodchip litter or little wood pellets. The kittens like to taste everything and put everything in their mouths, just like little babies. At about 6-8 weeks of age they are transitioned to Dr. Elsey's Litter. I buy this at King Soopers. You can also get it online at Chewys.com

Litter Used – If you are going to use a different litter, please start with this and transition them to the litter you would like to use gradually.

Litter Box Used – I use these large ones because I have multiple cats and it keeps them from kicking litter all over the place. You are more than welcome to use what ever you like. I get these at Home Depot for $8. They are more durable than the ones you get at the pet store and they have all different sizes and are not as flimsy.

